Additional Regulations Concerning "Three Types of Legal Rewards" Task of the Population and Family Planning Bureau, Cangshan District

In order to thoroughly implement "The Population and Family Planning Regulations of Fujian Province", it's stipulated the implementation of "Three Types of Legal" rewards to the couples who follow family planning policy. Now, according to the requirements of family planning offices of the province and city level, and in conjunction with our district's actual situation, it's especially stipulated the following additional regulations on concerned items:

First, reward for parents with a single child.

1. Having one boy in rural area and having one child in urban area. A month after the baby's birth, the parents shall receive "Only-Child Parents Honorable Certificate". Family planning workers from various administrative villages (community), together with the head of central household (team) should visit these parents promptly and send them their congratulations, and deliver them proclamation circular of the "Only-Child Parents Honorable Certificate". For those parents who had been repeatedly mobilized on receiving the "Only-Child Parents Honorable Certificate" but do not wish to receive such certificate, they must sign and waive their right to receive the certificate temporarily. This shall be recorded with explanation.
2. For those who apply and receive the only-child parents rewards, they must have a household registration in the rural area. If in the city, they must be unemployed.
3. Documents submitted to apply and receive only-child parents rewards: (1) the original and photocopy of the "Only-Child Parents Honorable Certificate"; (2) Single-child birth certificate or both the original and photocopy of the household registration; (3) the original and photocopy of both parents' household registration; (4) the original and photocopy of marriage certificate. Applicants must apply at the family planning office that has jurisdiction on where they reside.
4. If an applicant has a work unit, then the reward should be given by the work unit. If the work unit does not give such reward, the family planning office should mail a reminder to the work unit with a "notice concerning single-child parents cash reward". If indeed the work unit does not provide such reward, the family planning office must enclose related documents to the District's family planning bureau.

5. For those applicants whose household registrations indicate a work unit but do not verify if they are unemployed, and if they have received the "Only-Child Parents Honorable Certificate" from our district, they must report the cash reward amount to their work unit.

Second, two daughters sterilization reward.

1. In rural area, couples who have two daughters must undergo sterilization surgery within three months after the birth of their second child. Family planning workers from the villages together with the head of central household (team) must visit them promptly to collect related documents for reward application purpose.

2. Documents needed for "Two Daughters Sterilization Reward" application: (1) the original and photocopy of the "Two Daughters Sterilization Surgery"; (2) the original and photocopy of the hospital discharge summary; (3) the original and photocopy of hospital inpatient receipt; and (4) the original and photocopy of "Repeated Birth Service Certificate" or the repeated birth verification form.

3. After township's (neighborhood) family planning workers receive such documents, and if they have doubt on the authenticity of such documents, they must verify with the hospital. If confirmed those document are indeed fraudulent, they must inform statisticians to update the data in the computer system with the number of deduction of "Two Daughters Sterilization" cases reflected.

Third, waiver to receive repeated birth reward.

1. For child-bearing populace under Cangshan's District's jurisdiction, if both husband and wife are single-child themselves from urban area and they have only one child, they can apply "Single-Child Parents Honorable Certificate" after the birth of their child. They must sign an agreement with the township's (neighborhood) family planning office to "waive their right to bear children again". They then can apply and receive cash reward for waiving their right to bear children again. These rules also apply to couples from rural area who only have a daughter, and either of the couple is single-child and they only have one child, and grandparents who have two daughters and their son(s)-in-law move in with them and have only one grandchild per daughter respectively.

2. Documents needed to waive their rights to bear children again: (1) the original and photocopy of Single-Child Parents Honorable Certificate; (2) the original and photocopy of marriage certificate; (3) the original and photocopy of both parents and child's household registration booklet; (4) the original and photocopy of the "double check-ups double make-ups" that occur three times a year; (5) the original of the agreement to waive right to bear children again, and (6) IUD insertion certificate.

3. Women of child-bearing age who waive their rights to bear children again must take long-term effective birth control precaution. If their health condition is found unsuitable for IUD insertion, they must be checked and verified that they are unsuitable for IUD insertion at the family planning service station.

4. For those who waived their right to bear children again and even if they never signed "the agreement to waive rights to bear children again", but if found pregnant and applying to give birth again, they must return two times of the cash reward.

Fourth, strict supervision. Violation of regulations must be penalized.

The family planning reward policy has a strong and broad effect. Its impact is huge. The three levels of family planning workers from the district, town (street) and the village (community) must take their jobs diligently and responsibly. Examination and approval must be done strictly. They must also facilitate the populace and serve them warm-heartedly. The Population and Family Planning Bureau of the District must spot-check the implementation situation timely and report them accordingly. Violation must be investigated seriously. If cash reward is found being diverted, concerned personnel and leaders must take responsibility. Cash reward must be distributed to reward recipients within 10 business days after it has come into the township's (neighborhood) fiscal office from the District. The above regulations will be effective on February 1, 2008.
